

David Moore is probably the most helpful person at the Wildacres workshops ever and him not being there will be difficult....I don't think anyone else knows how to use the strapping machine for the pallets! He was always one of the last few people still down at the workshop area helping to the bitter end (even when it was cold and raining). If we needed some unusual tool that no one else had, he always had one of those in his truck. He also has the ability to source anything we could possibly need for a good price, and usually from an auction somewhere. He has also helped out on the education committee for all the years that I have known him. He came up with the new hands on test for certification which is way more in line with our trade of heater building than the old test. I feel that he is very deserving of the Jerry Frisch award.
