*The new MHA Forum:
"The Warming Bench"!*

Sooner or later we begin to realize that the answer to the nagging question of the day or moment is found on .....the Internet!

I learned this lesson when I needed to lube the spline on my recently acquired 21 year old shaft driven BMW bike a few years ago. Researching a forum dedicated specifically to "K" series Beemers I learned that this important maintenance item was considered within my skill level and would save me a few hundred $ of dealer labor. The "How-to" was not a Youtube demo: rather a clearly written and photo documented procedure that proved worth it's weight to me. Since then, I've turned to forums more and more for valuable information on a variety of practical subjects.

I anticipate the MHA forum will provide yet another valuable resource for MHA members. Right now, it's just a skeleton waiting to fill up with our ideas, questions, announcements and rants. I recently had a chance to plug the Forum when someone on the Chat group posted a "ride wanted" from Asheville up to Wildacres this year. So, with our new forum we have an Annual Meeting Topic where members can discuss rides to and from Wildacres.

We'll also post some of the larger auction items that will be available this year. Maybe you have a wet saw you are no longer using and would like to sell. There's a Sell & Buy (Want Ads) forum to sell/buy items from fellow members. You could find a member buyer and bring it to Wildacres to complete the transaction. Maybe you would like to partner with another member when business is slow or you are shorthanded. Check the Help Wanted forum. You get the idea.

Please register for the new Forum. It's quick and easy. Once you are confirmed you're a paid member, you'll have a password that your computer could remember. Feel free to suggest topics. You can then go to the appropriate forum and post a topic or "thread" and see where it leads.

See you there!

To register just open the MHA website: www.mha-net.org. In the black box, under the MHA logo, you'll find the Forum link to the far right. Just click it open and register. The link will take you to the vBulletin Forums: (<http://www.mha-net.org/forum-members/>)

Then let the fun begin.
